Guam, April 23 (AP)—Japanese troops, infiltrating heavily under cover of darkness, this morning recaptured Xkakazu town on western Okinawa. It had been taken by the U. S. 27th Division in the invasion campaign which has cost the enemy 11,738 troops since April 1.

One officer described the drive as "damn" slow and not "cheap."

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, reporting progress up to 5 p. m. yesterday, the fifth day of the all-out American push, said "no substantial changes had been made in the lines" despite continued attacks with thunderous naval, air and artillery support.

Two New Invasions

Nimitz reported also the marine invasion of two small islets off Okinawa, another heavy Japanese air raid against American ground positions and shipping at Okinawa in which "one light unit" of the fleet was sunk, an effective two Jima-based Mustang sweep of the enemy's mainland island of Honshu and a carrier-plane attack on the northern Ryukyus.

Maj. Gen. John R. Hodge, commander of the 24th Army Corps—the 7th, 27th and 96th Divisions—counted 11,738 Japanese killed and 27 taken prisoner since D-Day in southern Okinawa, his zone of action.

This did not include enemy casualties on the nine Kerama Islands and Ie Shima offshore, captured by the 77th Division, or any of the Japanese slain by the First and Sixth Marine Divisions which overran northern Okinawa.

On Ie alone, 736 Japanese were killed in the first three days of the five-day campaign which ended Friday.

Yanks Take Pikit On Mindanao

Manila, April 23 (AP)—Skirting unexplored swamplands and boating up crocodile-infested rivers, 24th division Yanks have captured Pikit, 32 air miles inland from the Mindanao island beachhead. This put them 42 miles from the city limits of Davao, a major port of the Philippines.

The 32nd division, fighting approximately 750 miles to the north, began its fourth year of overseas duty by battling in holed up caves in the rugged Balete Pass area in the Caraballo mountains of northern Luzon.

The 112th regiment of this division counted its 1,000th dead Japanese soldier in the current cave fighting in the Santa Maria Valley, northeast of Manila. Headquarters reported that many live Japanese remain to be dug out.

The bag of accused Filipino collaborators held two more important members, Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today. These are Claro N. Recto, minister of Foreign Affairs, and Rafael Alunan, minister of agriculture and commerce in the Puppet cabinet. They were captured at Baguio. With others, they will be confined for the duration and then stand trial by the Philippine commonwealth.

The softening up of Borneo for possible invasion continued with 130 tons of bombs dropped by heavy, medium and fighter bombers operating from airfields some of which are less than 15 minutes flying time away.

LOCAL SAILOR TELLS OF IWO JIMA BATTLE

The name of H. James Spahr, Radaman 3-c, son of Mrs. Raymond Spahr, York street, may be added to the already long list of Gettysburgians and Adams countians who participated in the battle for Iwo Jima. In a recent letter to his mother young Spahr wrote as follows:

"I was at Iwo Jima and was on the beach for 12 days . . . the worst days of my life, as I was really scared."

"We left the ship an hour before H-hour and headed in the direction of the beach. We really didn't stay on the beach the first two days but on several occasions we landed and then shovelled off again."

"Those Japs were really ready. Several times machine-gun bullets or some darn kind would start hitting around us and we didn't wait to find out what kind."

Heavy Jap Shelling

"On D plus 2 we went in to stay and the front lines were about 400 yards to our right or toward the north end of the island. They had to let us know they were still there by dropping mortars over too darn often and I'll bet I broke Jesse Owens' records plenty of times going down that beach. They'd start about

Mrs. Anna Bender, Aspers, formerly of Bendersville, has received a letter from her husband, Pvt. Crawford L. Here And There News Collected At Random

A Gettysburg soldier, in an overseas hospital, writes as follows:

"I am writing from a hospital somewhere in England."

"This is to try and describe the feelings of myself and the rest of my comrades who are wounded, upon receiving word of the death of our great Commander-in-Chief."

"I feel sure that I am right when I state that the passing of President Roosevelt was a great shock to all men in the service. . . . At the front and in the hospitals."

"To us who served our Commander-in-Chief he was an inspiration. To most of us he was like a father."

"Every one of us who was able to attend the memorial services held here at the chapel had tears in his eyes."

"President Roosevelt was a great and just man. His fame will never die. He was friend to all who knew him. He served all humanity, no matter what color, race or creed. God must have had a good reason for calling such a good Christian home."

"America can feel proud that in her hour of need the people selected Franklin D. Roosevelt to lead us on to victory. To us he died on the field of battle. He died in action against the enemies of our beloved country. Just like Washington, Lincoln and the rest of our forefathers his glory will live on in the hearts of his countrymen who loved him."

"Throughout the world every American soldier, sailor and marine paid their respects to the great Commander-in-Chief. His passing will weigh heavy in the hearts of all who served him. The whole world will long remember what he has done for us."

Horseback Rider To Face Traffic Count

The "operator" of a horse will be charged with reckless driving as the result of a combination automobile and horse accident which occurred in Midway late Saturday afternoon, state police from the local substation reported this morning.

In addition, the horseback rider, Frederick Rutter, of Hanover, flew through the air about 35 feet after the animal on which he was mounted ran into an automobile driven by Milton J. R. Leese, Hanover, at a Midway street intersection.

Rutter landed on his back and suffered a bruised back and lacerations, police said. He refused treatment, however. The horse ran into the right fender of the automobile. The car was damaged to the extent of about $125.

Under the state motor code, the rider of an animal is classified as the operator of a vehicle. The reckless driving charge will be brought under that statute, police said.

CRIMINAL COURT SESSION OPENS; BRENT ON TRIAL

The April term of criminal court opened this morning with the hearing of testimony in the Commonwealth's charge of assault and battery against Logan M. Brent, Jr., Gettysburg R. 3.

Brent was charged with assaulting Mrs. Lawrence Parrish, Westminister R. 7, as she walked along Springs avenue about 11:30 o'clock on the night of February 14.

Brent's attorney, John P. Butt, Esq., opened his defense this morning with testimony to show that the defendant was at his home the entire night of the assault and that therefore the Commonwealth's case is one of mistaken identity.

District Attorney J. Francis Yake, Jr., began his case this morning with testimony from Mrs. Parrish; Floyd Hartman, of Cashtown, who took her to her parents' home following the assault, and Borough Officer Clark W. Staley and Private James Walsh of the state police, who investigated the case.

Describes Assault

Mrs. Parrish described how she had come to Gettysburg on the night of February 14 to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Crouse, on Seminary avenue. She noticed someone following her, and as she reached the Meade school building and started walking west on Springs avenue, she turned around near a street light and noticed that it was Brent following her. He approached her as she neared the railroad tracks which pass in the rear of the school building, took her by the arm and said, "Don't make a move. I have a knife," she testified.

Mrs. Parrish said that Brent told her he wanted to get out of town and wanted her to go with him. She described how they walked across the rear of the school toward Buford avenue. As they approached a gasoline station she noticed a man filling a front tire on his automobile, and screamed for help. The defendant then ran off toward

The Rev. Mr. Carroll a native of Lynchburg, Va., is a graduate of the seminary at Westminster, Md. He will deliver his farewell address at Duncannon next Sunday and will come here with his wife and daughter early next week. His first sermon will be delivered at the local church Sunday, May 6.

Two other pastoral changes were announced for Adams county. The Rev. W. J. Cummings was ordered transferred from Littlestown to Duncannon, and the Rev. G. D. Kreps, pastor of the James Street church, Altoona, was appointed the new pastor at York Springs.

The Rev. Earl N. Rowe, pastor of the York Springs-Hunterstown-New Oxford charge, has been transferred to Williamsburg.

Firemen Will Gather Clothing

The pile of bundles of used clothing donated for civilians in war stricken countries of Europe mounted over the week-end as members of the Gettysburg fire company prepared to make a street-by-street collection of clothing throughout the town, starting at 6:30 o'clock this evening.

Supt. L. C. Keefauver, chairman of the local sponsoring committee, announced that the collection by the firemen this evening is the "last call" in the community - sponsored drive which opened last Wednesday.

Richard Warren, a member of the committee, hauled a pickup truckload of clothing from each of the local school buildings late Friday. East Berlin has sent a truckload of clothing here and Abbottstown will bring its clothing to the Gettysburg center for shipping.

Other communities in the county that are in charge of their own drives have been told they may bring their bundles of clothing to the local center in preparation for shipping.

Invaders Seize Fifth Of City; Patton's Men Join Offensive Against Bavarian Strongholds

By JAMES M. LONG

Paris, April 23 (AP)—Lt. Gen. George Patton's Third Army slammed down 28 miles against the roof of Hitler's Bavarian redoubt today, joining the general offensive in the South which burst through the enemy's Danube river line within 50 miles of Munich.

In the north, the British opened the final onslaught against Bremen and the American First and Ninth Armies anxiously awaited a junction with the Russians—expected momentarily.

The First Army captured Dessau (120,000), 52 miles southwest of beleaguered Berlin, along with 21,373 prisoners.

The fall of Dessau left only 14 German cities under the Nazi flag.

Patton's new, offensive carried within 128 miles of Berchtesgaden and within 25 of the Danubian city of Regensburg. His troops reached within 125 miles of the Austrian stronghold of Linz in a swift advance which severed many of the routes between the redoubt and the Pilsen-Prague munitions area—Hitler's last known arsenal of size.

50 Miles to Munich

The Third Army operated on the left of Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's Seventh Army, which closed up to the Danube to within 50 miles of Munich and 110 of the Brenner pass. The French on the right curled around Lake Constance, western edge of the redoubt, and closed up to the Swiss border behind a 1,000-square-mile death trap sprung in the Black forest.

Stuttgart and Freiburg, two of Hitler's last major cities, fell to Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth Army group. The Seventh Army was flooding across the Danube on an intact bridge.

Hideaway Under Assault

The new Third Army offensive was estimated to have netted 33,000 prisoners in the first 24 hours. It extended the southern offensive all the way from the Swiss to Czechoslovak frontiers.

Hitler's hastily stocked death-stand hideaway in the towering mountains from Berchtesgaden to Lake Constance was being brought under full force attack, even before the formal splitting of the German armies was announced.

The Third army turned abruptly and secretly from its eastward drive against Dresden and other parts of Saxony, in an operation scarcely less difficult than when it shifted from the Saar into the Ardennes to counter the German Christmas breakthrough effort.

The Germans apparently had not expected the outer ramparts of their last fortress to be charged so soon. They were reeling back, offering slight opposition.

Yanks Reach Danube

The Luxembourg radio asserted that the First army had joined the Russians near Torgau, 31 miles northeast of Leipzig, finally splitting the Germans' northern redoubt from the mountain fastness in the south. Supreme headquarters had no confirmation and said the junction would be announced by Washington, London and Moscow. At last reports, the Allies and Russians were 15 to 20 miles apart.

The Hellcat (12th Armored) division of the Seventh army reached a town on the Danube 50 miles from Munich after a 14-mile sprint southward, it was announced officially. The town was not identified. A two-lane bridge was captured intact. The Danube was crossed farther west.

Assault Nazi Ports

In the north, the British opened the final assault on Bremen and besieged Hamburg, second and first ports of Germany. Lt. Gen. Sir Miles C. Dempsey's tanks pulled up the Elbe on a 50-mile front northwest of the 150-mile stretch held by the American Ninth and First Armies. The Canadians besieged Emden but were checked in western Holland on the flooded Grebbe-river line.

Gen. Jacob L. Devers' Sixth Army group—the American Seventh and French First armies—reached Lake Constance, western limit of the Bavarian redoubt, and captured the cities of Stuttgart (459,538) and Freiburg (11,800). They sealed off thousands of Germans in a 1,000-square mile pocket in the Black Forest, containing the last intact section of the Siegfried line. The pocket was formed by a plunge to the Swiss border and a point 37 miles

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

London, April 23 (AP)—Red Army troops held a tight grip on one fifth to one fourth of greater Berlin today and bored in from three sides toward the heart of the blazing capital now blanketed by shellfire and all but surrounded.

Moscow dispatches said Red banners fluttered from battered and smoking buildings in the capital and that Soviet storm units appeared to be only a few miles from the Wilhelmstrasse and from Unter Den Linden and Tiergarten in the heart of the city.

There was only one way out of Berlin—westward by way of Spandau—and unconfirmed reports said this escape corridor now was narrowed to little more than five miles.

To the south other Russian forces were within 15 miles or less of a junction with their American Allies.

The German high command, declaring that "the battle for the Reich capital has blazed up in full fury," claimed that the railroad station in Coepenick, one of Berlin's main southeastern suburbs and 10 miles from the center of the city, had been recaptured.

Battle Raging Through Suburbs

The communique said fighting was raging through Beilitz, Trebbin, Teltow and Dahlwitz a string of southern suburbs within 10 to 24 miles of the heart of the capital.

The high command claimed that a Russian breach along the Prenzlauer Allee running almost due north three miles from the Potsdam Platz had been sealed off and disclosed that a Soviet encircling swing north of the city had reached the Havel river which runs north and south just west of the capital through Spandau and Charlottenburg, western suburbs.

Berlin was being transformed into a ghastly monument to senseless Nazi resistance as Soviet shells and bombs tumbled buildings into the streets, heaping new ruin on that accomplished by past Allied aerial blows.

By official Moscow account 21 of Berlin's districts, or one-sixth of its total area, were already in Russian hands. The fighting men of Russia were back in Berlin for the first time since they occupied the city in 1760 in the seven year war.

Reds Reach Unter Den Linden

The German-controlled Scandinavian telegraph bureau reported Soviet tanks and infantry in the heart of the city, and told of 3,000-odd residents crowded so closely in underground shelters they could not be seated.

The Paris radio reported that Soviet troops had reached Unter Den Linden and that fierce fighting was raging around the Brandenburg Tor in the area that once was the center of Berlin's official and social life. The broadcast attributed its information to "a secret German language station."

Earlier the Paris radio carried an unconfirmed report that foreign workers had seized the Warschauer Brucke railway station, about two and a half miles from Unter Den Linden. This report said foreign workers were battling SS troops in the Zimmerstrasse, which runs 10 blocks south of Unter Den Linden and is the site of many of Berlin's newspaper plants.

Taking Heavy Toll

The Swiss radio chimed in with a report that the Russians were fighting for the great Anhalter railway station, about a mile south of the Brandenburg Tor. Farther southwest other Red Army troops were reported in the Neukoelln district, once a Communist center.

Flames were raging through the Anhalter station, the Swiss report said.

The official Soviet war bulletin was more conservative than these accounts, but said 18 of Berlin's inner districts and three outer suburbs were captured and that fighting was in progress in the area of the Berlin belt railway.

At least 8,000 Germans were killed in Berlin Sunday, and prisoners taken in the past five days mounted to 23,000, the Russians said.

Good Evening
The world has waited a long time for these headlines.

BERLIN BATTLE IS CLIMAX TO END OF NAZIS

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Associated Press War Analyst)

Just as the bloody battle of Stalingrad was the turning point of the European war—since this was where Hitler broke his back—so is the terrible battle of Berlin the climax which is rushing us to the end of Nazism.

The fall of the German capital and junction of the Russians and the western Allies after fighting their way from the extremes of the European continent—will complete the breaking up of an enemy army which not so long ago was the mightiest war machine ever sent into action. The remnants will be sent spinning into more or less isolated pockets of resistance, and will mark the real beginning of the last-ditch guerrilla warfare which Hitler has ordered.

We should note that up to now, while organized Hitlerite resistance has been knocked out on the western front, the Germans have managed to maintain a powerful battle-line against the Muscovites. The present numerical strength of the Nazis in the east is a matter of speculation, but there may be upwards of a million men still struggling against the Red flood. Once the tenuous cohesion of these German armies is broken, they will be in the same straits as their comrades of the west.

Berlin's Vitals Torn

The Nazi dictator himself finally has admitted that his armies on the western front no longer are capable of organized resistance and, in an order of the day, has commanded them to adopt guerrilla tactics, that is to say, to harass the Allies by hitting and running. The civilian underground organization is a part of this scheme of operation. This order will be made to apply also to eastern Germany with the dissolution of the Nazi battle-line there.

Berlin is tottering to its doom. Red forces are ripping at the very vitals of this greatest city ever to come under siege, and one-sixth of the sprawling metropolis already is in their hands. Berlin is more than half surrounded by a cordon of steel, and Russian artillery is pouring death and destruction into this city which ranks fourth in size for the whole world, being surpassed only by London, New York and Tokyo.

Fighting Not Over

Dispatches say that 3,000,000 people still remain within the stricken city. Potentially it's a slaughter-house. The extent of the carnage depends on how long the fanatical Nazi troops can hold the civilian population in line while, as a radio message from the capital says: "They are blasting us hellishly."

Should the senseless resistance compel the attacking forces to destroy Berlin, it's a fair guess that this will be quite all right with most Allied peoples, whose nerves are awfully raw from the reports of the mighty German atrocities. A Berlin leveled to the ground and filled with Hitlerite dead would be a cogent reminder to what's left of the Reich that crime doesn't pay. Let's hope the German radio report that Hitler is in the capital is true!

Despite the triumphant progress of the Allies on all fronts, there's no disposition on the part of the high command to minimize the prospects of hard fighting which will be necessary to clean out the widely distributed enemy pockets.

A letter carrying the meeting notice was mailed today to all association members. The topics of disease and insect conditions in the orchards will be discussed by G. L. Zundel and J. O. Pepper, extension specialists from Pennsylvania State college. Tyson said that the spray material mixing demonstration will be conducted "for the special attention of those growers that have secured phonographs."

He also said, in regard to the farm labor wage rate committee hearing, that "it is necessary for growers to determine the base rate of pay for piece work and may we stress the importance of grower representation and participation."

NAZIS IN PANIC AT HITLER RAGE

Stockholm, April 23 (AP)—The Stockholm Tidningen reported today from a "special source in Berlin" that Adolf Hitler tore shoulder ornaments off Field Marshal Von Rundstedt, threw them in his face and reduced him to the rank of a private soldier in a rage at the American capture of the Remagen bridge intact.

The Swedish newspaper said panic existed in Germany because of both the catastrophic war situation and the mad raging of Hitler.

The story said that the Fuehrer's condition caused many high government officials in Berlin who had been ordered to report to the National Redoubt area in the south to change their minds and disappear "in a northeasterly direction."

According to this report, the seat of the German government has been moved to Salzburg. Among prominent government officials who have recently left Berlin for Salzburg are Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Dr. Paul Schmidt, the Foreign press chief.

The story asserted that those obeying the order to head south have openly declared that they had a "free ticket to Valhalla."

Summer House Is Damaged By Fire

Damage estimated at $250 was done by fire to a summer house on the farm of Roy Kindig, about two miles south of Littlestown, along a road connecting the Hanover-Littlestown and Littlestown-Baltimore highways, shortly before noon Friday. The Alpha Fire company, Littlestown, extinguished the blaze.

The fire started near a fireplace in the building, a frame structure with a tin roof. Most of the damage was done to the upper part of the building, the fire burning between the ceiling and the roof. Firemen used water from a booster tank to extinguish the fire.

DISINFECTANTS REDUCE LOSS IN EARLY SOWING

Seeds and infant plants (seedlings) are often attacked by moulds or fungi which destroy them. This is most likely to occur when conditions are unfavorable, and they become either too wet, cold or warm for quick germination and healthy growth.

Seeds started indoors, or early in the spring before the ground warms up, are much more likely to be attacked than those sown in warm, sunny weather. There are said to be 500 different organisms which may be present in soil or on the seeds (like bacteria in the human system) waiting favorable conditions to develop.

One way to protect your sowing from these attacks is to disinfect the seeds, with one of a number of disinfectants which have been proved to be effective. This protection is especially worth while when you are trying to get an extra early start, either by sowing indoors, or in cold weather outside.

Powders and Liquids

There is no danger to the seed in using these materials provided the simple directions furnished with them are followed, precisely. Never use any disinfectant in greater strength than recommended. It is remarkable what a small amount will do.

For example, in using disinfectant as a dry powder, the quantity which can be lifted on the blunt end of a toothpick is sufficient to coat and protect the seed in a standard-size packet. Tear a corner of the packet, insert the dust and shake thoroughly, and the job is done.

Most of these materials can also be used in liquid form, the seed being soaked in the solution, then dried before sowing.

Information about the best disinfectants can be obtained from seedsmen, from state experiment stations, from the Bureau of Information of the Department of Agriculture in Washington, and from most garden centers and Victory garden headquarters.

Should a sudden drop in temperature cause frost, newspapers placed over the planted rows and held in place by loose soil around the edges will give sufficient protection.

Set out pansy plants.

Watch for borers in lilacs. Their presence is indicated by sawdust on the stems. Work wire in the holes and inject a nicotine sulphate paste.

As soon as daffodils cease blooming give them an application of a complete plant food.

Clean up the iris beds before the plants grow too tall.

Wood ashes worked into the soil around the plants at this time are beneficial to the grape vines.

Potatoes may be planted now.

All legumes, including lupins and sweet peas as well as garden peas, do better when inoculated with one of the preparations which help them secrete nitrogen from the soil.

Asparagus beds started from seed will begin producing well almost as soon as a bed started from roots.

A bed in rich, deep soil will last a lifetime.

Mexican Bean Beetle Control

As we enter the vital 1945 gardening season, vegetable growers, particularly beginners and Victory Gardeners, should know three important facts about the dreaded Mexican bean beetle: (1) This insect can be completely controlled; (2) Combat measures are not costly or difficult; and (3) No dangers are incurred where proper insecticides are properly employed to exterminate this unprofitable invader.

The adult beetle is a copper-colored, round-backed insect easily identified by 16 black spots on its wing covers. It is about one-fourth of an inch long and one-fifth of an inch wide, somewhat resembling our native and beneficial ladybird or ladybug beetle. The larva or young is an orange-colored grub varying in length from one-twentieth of an inch when first hatched to one-third of an inch when fully developed. It is covered with fuzzy spines and in no manner resembles the parent beetle.

Combat methods must be based on the insect's peculiar feeding habits, else gardeners will fall in their efforts to control their most formidable foe. Adult beetles feed mainly on the under sides of the leaves, occasionally cutting through the thin top tissue, while the larvae or grubs feed exclusively on the under sides of the leaves but do not eat through the top surface. The feeding of both forms causes a lace-like appearance of the foliage, with almost complete destruction after the pests become numerous. Even bean pods and stems may be eaten later when the hungry foes have consumed the leaves.

Female beetles deposit their eggs on the under sides of bean leaves in orange-colored clusters of 40 to 60. Within a few hours after hatching the tiny larvae begin to feed, molting several times before they transform into adult beetles. There are numerous and successive generations over-lapping from late May until early autumn. The insects over-winter as fully grown beetles hibernated beneath vegetation in and near the garden.

Use of Rotenone

Control measures should start in late fall by burning all accumulated debris in the garden and along nearby fences. As soon as the first beetles are seen after bean leaves open, gardeners should inspect the plants every day or two and crush the conspicuous egg clusters. Too, no long delay should ensue after beetles appear before spraying or dusting is begun.

If an adequate supply of rotenone is available for all-season use, apply a ready-mixed dust according to directions on the manufacturer's container or spray with rotenone at the rate of 3 level tablespoonfuls to 1 gallon of water.

If rotenone is scarce, save the supply for use after bean pods begin to form to combat the beetles earlier with cryolite in dust form at the rate of 2 pounds of cryolite mixed with 1 pound of talc or in a spray at the rate of 1 ounce (8 level teaspoonfuls) to one gallon of water.

With spray or dust it is necessary to coat the under sides of the leaves uniformly and liberally or the beetles and larvae will escape the poison's lethal effects. It is useless to coat only the top surfaces of the foliage.

Too much emphasis cannot be placed on the importance of starting combat as soon as the beetles appear and continuing as long as any survivors are found on the plants. If it is necessary to spray or dust beans after pods begin to form, use rotenone for safety reasons. Of course, green beans should be washed carefully before cooking.

Garden Activities For Late April

Plant standard and dwarf fruit trees and bush fruits.

Plant peas, lettuce, onions, radishes, spinach, Swiss chard, parsley, parsnips, beets, early cabbage, carrots, kohlrabi, mustard, and turnips.

Keep the soil stirred around the plants of cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and kohlrabi in order to kill the larvae of the cabbage maggot.

Protect plants from cutworms by placing ashes around them.

Soil hilled around newly planted hybrid tea roses should be left in place until the buds begin to swell.

Emergency Bean Beetle Combat

The dreaded Mexican bean beetle will be arrived in a few weeks. War restrictions have taken former insecticidal weapons from the market and necessitate the use of emergency or substitute materials. Therefore, the editor has compiled an outline of spray and dust information for our readers, remedies which will enable gardeners to keep this destructive invader under complete control. Write today, enclosing a 3-cent stamp, for a free copy. Too, include all the questions desired on this and other garden problems.

Find Corner For Mints In Garden

Somewhere in your victory garden, there ought to be a place for a mint patch. Spearmint of green mint, a hardy perennial, will come in mighty handy for sauces, juleps or jellies, and is easy to grow. It can be produced from seed, but the neighborhood nurseryman or florist is likely to have some started plants.

The plant will grow anywhere, but it prefers a rich, moist soil. All that is needed are a few plants, for they grow so vigorously and spread so that if you're not careful, they will overrun the garden. Therefore, a little patch by itself is suggested.

The ordinary mint is different from peppermint, which is of stronger flavor and used chiefly for the oil distilled from the stems and thought myself as rather good; how and what to do, thoroughly I understood; all the tricks I knew, at I went from bad to worse, outlasting as a nurse.

Call me when you need, I said. "I'll be on the spot! smooth the pillows on your bed! Trust me! Worry Not!"

ove, she found, can be a nurse, asking proper skill to verse. ou will never be a nurse."

Today's Talk

I WILL
There is no mastery in life so important or so essential as self-mastery. But it is the "I" of us that decides all this. It says—I will. You recall the famous story of the Prodigal Son, in the Bible, and how that boy, disgusted with wild living and selfish pursuits, finally decided that he would change it. And so he said: "I will arise and go to my father." No one else could make that decision for him. It was he in him that decided.

In that famous poem by W. E. Henley called "Invictus" you will recall the phrase—"I am the Master of my fate, I am the Captain of my soul."

Chicago is known as the "I Will" city—and anyone who has ever lived here, or spent any amount of time here, can understand why that city has forged ahead so rapidly, and created such a fine public spirit, this in spite of the fact that there are elements in that city that would destroy its good name. But the heart of the city is sound, and across its portal is written invisibly these two words—"I Will."

We are only as important as we are. And we can only do great things by deciding to do them, and it's this "I" in us that leads us forward. It is Napoleon's great self-mastery that has kept his name alive as an inspiration to all the world. When he told his soldiers that "there shall be no Alps," it was his way of saying that I will see that you get across.

The success and happiness of every human being are largely determined by his handling of his "I." He first realizes the I can, and then decides upon the I will. There is no substitute for the personality that you own, nor for the mind with which you have been blessed by a great Creator. Make the I the master of both!

There is such a thing as a triumphant life, the all-conquering life that takes all that life has to offer in its stride, meeting with courage and resolution every appearing phase. It was said of Hercules, the god of Force, that whether he sat, or walked, or whatever he did, he conquered. He was a master of the I will.

tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Comfort and Hope"

Seek Adjourment Of Legislature
Harrisburg, April 23 (AP)—Although many major issues still must be decided leaders of the General Assembly nevertheless drove ahead today for final adjournment early in May.

"We're going to try to clean things up during the first week in May," said Senate Republican Leader William B. Heyburn, although conceding more time might be required.

From the Democratic side, Sen. John H. Dent, the minority leader, said the G.O.P. chiefs had tentatively agreed on Saturday May 5 for the final bang of the gavel. Another date mentioned was Saturday, May 12.

Catfish are known to make soft purring sounds when happy.

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO
Death of Hon. Robert Goodloe Harper: We have the painful duty of announcing the death of ROBERT GOODLOE HARPER, the senior proprietor of the "STAR AND SENTINEL," which took place at 2 o'clock a. m. on Monday morning. Several weeks ago he took a severe cold which confined him to his bed.

Mr. Harper was born on the 13th of October, 1799. His father, Robert Harper, in 1800, removed from Chambersburg to Gettysburg, and established the "Adams Sentinel." Adams having been erected into a county, with Gettysburg as the county seat. The father died in 1816, when his son, Robert Goodloe, and in his 17th year, took charge of the paper until he reached his majority, when he assumed the proprietorship of the paper. He continued sole editor and proprietor of the "Sentinel" until the 23rd of May, 1867 when by the consolidation of the "STAR" and the "SENTINEL," he became the senior member of the new firm. Mr. Harper, by reason of his long editorial career, was entitled to be regarded as the "Nestor" of the Pennsylvania Press.

From time to time Mr. Harper was frequently called to responsible positions—as School Director, Burgess, Trustee of Pennsylvania College, County Treasurer, U. S. Internal Revenue Assessor and Associate Judge. Mr. Harper was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Mr. Harper's remains were interred in Evergreen cemetery on Tuesday afternoon, attended by members of the "Gettysburg Beneficial Society," Good Samaritan Lodge No. 336, A. Y. M., the officers of the Court and members of the Bar, and a large concourse of citizens. The religious services at the house and at the grave were conducted by Rev. Mr. Hillis and Prof. Ferrier—at the conclusion of which the remains were consigned to their resting place with the funeral services of the Masonic Order, of which Mr. Harper was a life-long adherent.

Mrs. Ziegler continues the Dress making at her residence on East Middle street, aside of the M. E. church. She is prepared to furnish all the latest patterns for ladies and children's clothing at reasonable rates.

He has also opened, in connection with his store, a Merchant Tailoring establishment so that customers who prefer it can have clothing made to order by the best of workmen. Call and see him.

U.S. WOULD HOLD PACIFIC BASES AFTER THE WAR

San Francisco, April 23 (AP)—The United States would retain control of strategic Pacific bases after the war under a compromise trusteeship plan reported under study today for presentation to the United Nations Conference.

This subject, together with a proposal for a "community of the Pacific" patterned after the Pan-American union, shared pre-conference interest with the long-troublesome Polish question, currently a big-three topic in Washington.

And as the Wednesday opening of the 46-nation conference drew near, Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and Commander Harold Stassen, former governor of Minnesota, predicted it would succeed in its job of establishing a world organization for peace.

To Satisfy the Military
Both are U. S. delegates and Vandenberg is reportedly in line for the job of representing this country on the conference commission which will write the regulations for the world security council.

This commission will handle the delicate problem of voting procedure within the inner circle of the peace-keeping organization.

Advocates say the International trusteeship compromise, worked out at Washington, is intended to satisfy military demands for the Pacific island bases, and at the same time to provide a plan that would work as well to the benefit of Russia, Britain or any other nation with military base requirements.

The idea is to have two kinds of trusteeships. Areas of one type would be subject to investigation and report by trustee committees of the proposed world organization. Territories of the other type would be subject to investigation and report by trustee committees of the proposed world organization. Territories of the other type, probably to be called security areas, would be assigned exclusively to the trustee power.

85 Pc. Of Big Store's Placed In Newspaper

New York, April 23—New York's R. H. Macy & Co., biggest single store in the world, rolled up sales of $112,661,451 during the last fiscal year on the 400,000 different types of merchandise it sells with 85 per cent of its advertising appropriation spent in newspapers, the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers association relates in a new folder, "Success Story," just issued to national advertisers and agencies.

"Macy's, the biggest store in the world," the folder points out, "invests more money in newspaper advertising than any other store in the world." Its 1944 schedules totaled 4,459,271 agate lines, equal to 1,858 full standard-size newspaper pages.

"The way Macy's feels about newspaper advertising," declares William H. Howard, the store's vice president in charge of advertising, in the folder, "is probably best attested by the amount of money we spend for it. Newspaper advertising works, whether we're selling merchandise or Macy's as an institution. Nobody knows it better than we do."

First Pennsylvanian Gets GI Farm Loan

Kennett Square, Pa., April 23 (AP)—The first Pennsylvanian to secure an agricultural loan through the GI Bill of Rights has planted his initial crops at "Biddle-Brook Farm," Chadds Ford, Delaware county.

Troy Roberts, 37-year-old Virginia-born farm worker who left Chester county a year ago to enter the Army, is already settled with his wife and three teen-aged youngsters in the six-room house on Biddle-Brook.

Roberts' son, Harvey, 18, who joined the Army while his father was in service, will never work with him in the rolling fields of Biddle-Brook. He was killed in Germany during the battle of the bulge.

Discharged last September because of his wife's illness, Roberts decided three months later to take advantage of the GI Bill of Rights guarantee of a veterans loan to begin farming "on his own."

BIG THREE GO ON WITH THEIR KEY CONFABS

By JAMES D. WHITE
Washington, April 23 (AP)—Their ranks complete, Big Three foreign ministers today headed into the second round of momentous discussions leading up to the San Francisco conference—just two days away.

Their first session—began less than four hours after Russian Foreign Commissar Molotov arrived by air from Moscow—broke up at 11:20 p. m., last night. Secretary of State Stettinius said only that they would meet again this morning. Molotov and British Foreign Secretary Eden were silent.

Wearing a broad smile and a grey topcoat and carrying direct word from Marshal Stalin on Russia's final attitude on such issues as the delicate Polish question, Molotov stepped from the U. S. Army transport plane that brought him from Moscow at 5:46 p. m. yesterday.

Nature of Talks Secret
He was received by President Truman at Blair house, temporary executive mansion, and by 9:30 he was conferring with Stettinius and Eden at the state department across the street.

Also present for the talks were Soviet Ambassador Andrew Gromyko, W. Averell Harriman, American ambassador to Russia; Sir Alexander Cadogan, British permanent undersecretary for foreign affairs, and Sir Archibald Clark-Kerr, British ambassador in Moscow.

There was no hint of the nature of their first talks.

High on the agenda, however, must be the issue of Polish representation, at the United Nations gathering opening in San Francisco Wednesday.

"Since the danger of enemy action has practically passed away these people in civilian defense protective services have been on a "stand-by" basis and have during floods, fires, wrecks, and other emergencies rendered valuable services," he added.

Radio Tokyo took to the air waves recently to extol the virtues of the Japs who were badly battered and defeated on Iwo Jima.

Said the Japanese announcer: "Two will go down in glorious history of the empire alongside the great conflicts at Yorktown and Gettysburg."

Not satisfied, or possibly inspired with Gettysburg, the high pitched voice had to borrow a phrase used about the same battle by President Abraham Lincoln. "These men shall not have died in vain," he said.

After a 25-minute broadcast, in which the Jap attempted to turn the defeat at bloody Iwo into a double-talk victory, he concluded with: "Two Jims was an insignificant little volcanic island that means nothing to Japan."

Cracked an aerial gunner with a First Marine Air Wing dive-bomber squadron when he heard the broadcast: "Now, it means nothing to the Japs, just about what Cuba would mean to us if it were in enemy hands."

En Route to Okinawa (Delayed) — Two Marines, one fresh from the States, the other an old timer, were discussing rationing at home. They lay on ponchos, on the steel deck of the transport. It was too hot to sleep below, reports Staff Sgt. James F. Moser, Jr., a Marine Corps combat correspondent.

"How about meat and canned goods?" asked the veteran.

"Aw, still rationed."

"How about coffee and sugar?"

"Still gotta use stamps."

"How about gas?"

"Rationed."

"Well, dammit, are they rationing MILK?" asked the old salt.

"Can't retorted the kid. 'The stuff would sour!'"

"They went to sleep, the old timer satisfied."

LOCAL SAILOR

(Continued from Page 1) 200 yards from our foxholes and then keep getting closer. After the first one dropped we'd start down the beach towards the volcano.

"The worst part of the deal was digging foxholes. We had to move out of the first one as they built a road near there that was mentioned in The Gettysburg Times. Our fox-hole was just where they laid it. We put our radios in a LUT that was knocked out in the first few hours and fortified it with sand bags. I dug in beside it. About 5 days later they repaired it and moved it and so we were out of a home."

Photo In Times. "In the March 5th edition of The Gettysburg Times there is a picture of some Marines going up the beach and in the background is the LUT that we were set up in. If you can get a copy of it save it for me. There are a few copies of it on the ship but everyone else wants a copy. They said in there it was worse than Valley Forge, Gettysburg and Tarawa. I guess the old home town is finally getting beaten."

Radaman Spahr, who has been in service a year and eight months, has two brothers in service, Lieut. Raymond W. Spahr, and Cpl. Robert L. Spahr, both on duty in Texas with the Army Air Forces. They have been in service about two and a half years. They are home on furlough now following the recent death and burial of their father.

Births in Germany during the first half of 1944 were reported to have shown an increase of 8 per cent over the first half of 1943.

Chapter 15

Christopher shook his head. "Nothing to that. You've certainly had a lot of luck since you came into this store—and all of it bad. No. As far as I can see, you have an expert touch. Maybe it's a special sense of timing—I wouldn't know. But the way you've handled this sale since you came into this office makes the old routine look as dated as a last year's kolinsky."

"Look at the innovations you've put in already—cutting in on Gleason's shopping hour Saturday morning, putting furs in the news, tying up the opening today with a last-minute mail order campaign—say—that's good going."

Brenda's face flushed with pleasure, then nervously she tried to cover a growing embarrassment. The letters on her desk suddenly needed her concentrated attention. Christopher hesitated a long moment, wondering a little at her silence, then he added quickly:

"For my money it's tops—Brenda."

He was watching her closely as he spoke; again he was aware that those inscrutable grey eyes were hard to read. She wasn't really looking at that mail. He felt his breath quickening. This was the first time he had called her Brenda—perhaps he should have waited.

"Thank you, Mr. Humbert." That was all she said. He noticed a tightness about her mouth though she smiled faintly when she looked at him.

"Christopher to you—at least off the record—that's what I hope." He started abruptly for the door. "Well—I guess I'd better be on my way—I'll be seeing you later." He added hastily, and then disappeared from sight.

As the office door closed behind him, Brenda stared a long moment at nothing in particular. It was awfully decent of him to come in to give her the first encouragement of any kind she had received since she came into the store. The sale had started well enough but she had a persistent feeling it wouldn't last. Something was going on in this fur section which she did not understand—and it worried her more than she liked to admit, even to herself.

Donohue had told her that afternoon the police believed the night watchman was killed trying to protect the milk department. He said they were looking for the fence a "mob" was working for store hold-ups and he was afraid they might try to pull another job.

Well, it was her responsibility to see that nothing more happened in her section. Everything depended on her running this section smoothly and making this sale a success. She was too near the top of the ladder now to be able to afford a slip of any kind.

Brenda walked quickly through the fur salon to the cashier's desk as the closing gong sounded through the store. For a few minutes she watched Irene in silence. The girl's skill fascinated her. Irene wrapped packages, made change kept track of credits, checked sales, and was entirely responsible for all the cash turned in daily from that section. Today Brenda knew the cash would run thousands of dollars beyond their normal sales.

Irene's strident voice soared above the calls for saleswomen, the clamor of telephones and the distant rumble of the city's traffic that came through the open windows as the section rushed to finish sales and close up for the night. Customers hurrying to reach the elevators turned to stare at her as she shouted in a voice that would shame a good hard-working call-boy.

"Jeepers creepers! That's a cash take. Can't you hold an idea long enough to make out a sales check? Hey, Stupid! Come back here! You gotta have a name on that package—what's your head for if you don't use it? Sure—sure—I know. That's a hold-over and needs a special slip. . . O.K. make it out—No, I won't do it for you. Get the floor manager!"

"Mr. Hanson! Mr. Hanson!" "And listen, Dope. If that's a present for the girl friend, get a gift tag for it—for crying out loud—it's GOTTA BE SPECIALLY WRAPPED!!" My Gawd! Have I deserved all this," she groaned, as Brenda turned to help the bewildered sales girl.

"Honestly, Mrs. Blair," Irene exclaimed apologetically, "I'm sorry, but these new girls just drive me nuts. I hope they get a head—they certainly need one! Now I've gotta quit foolin' around here and get my cash up. Let Bill take 'em over in hour!"

By ten minutes past six Irene had finished adding her checks and cash. She rechecked her sales slips and stacked them neatly in a separate pile. Then she took down her cash box.

"Gripes, I'm late," Brenda heard her muttering under her breath. "Joe can't wait."

She banished the lid of the cash box with her fist and then bent down to examine the lock. Several futile minutes passed as Irene experimented with everything from a hairpin to a small hammer, trying to make the lock work. Her indignation and her vocabulary increased to a startling degree.

"What's the matter, Irene? Something wrong with that box again?"

"I'll say there is. The blasted thing won't work. My Gawd, Mrs. Blair, what'll I do? I gotta date waiting for me now—and it's his last night on leave. I can't wait any longer. Just my goldurned luck!" Her voice ended in a high shrill note of exasperation.

Brenda examined the lock. It was the new one she had ordered for Irene the week before. As she leaned over, struggling to make the key turn in the lock, she noticed a number of scratches on its shining brass surface.

CONGRESSMEN VIEW HORRORS IN NAZI CAMP

Buchenwald, Germany, April 23 (AP)—Eight American congressmen agreed today after inspecting the horrors of Buchenwald prison camp that the evidence of Nazi atrocities committed there exceed the wildest flights of imagination.

"This is the most horrible thing that anyone could conceive," said Rep. Carter Manasco (D-Ala.) after he and his companions had been shown around the camp—where emaciated bodies of the Nazis' victims are still stacked like cordwood, where men were hung on spikes like sides of beef until they died, and where bodies by the hundreds were burned in furnaces.

"This is barbarism at its worst," said Rep. Gordon Canfield (R-N.J.) He declared the evidence bore out everything that had been said or written about Nazi brutality.

Bodies Piled Like Logs. The congressmen, who were in Britain on various missions, were invited to come here by Gen. Eisenhower so that they might obtain first hand evidence of the atrocities.

committed in Buchenwald. Other members of the group were Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash.), Earl Wilson (R-Ind.), Albert Rains (D-Ala.), Eugene Worley (D-Tex.), Marion T. Bentler (R-Mo.) and Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.)

Behind one building the congressmen saw a great heap of wasted human bodies, which the Nazis had left piled up one atop the other like so many logs. Nearby was a truck piled high with 60 more bodies, each bearing a tattooed prison number.

In the adjacent courtyard was a pile of ashes and bits of bone—remains of the dead who had been burned in the 12-furnace crematory, where blackened skulls still could be seen.

Below the furnaces the congressmen were shown a room from which the prisoners said none of their number ever had emerged alive. Along the walls were hooks like those in a butcher shop, and prisoners said human bodies—including some that still had life—were hung there until the furnaces were ready.

CHISOX TAKE 5TH STRAIGHT; CARDS DIVIDE

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

For the first time in 25 years, the Chicago White Sox have gotten away to a flying start in the American league pennant race.

In winning a Sunday twin bill from the St. Louis Browns, 4-3 and 5-3 to sweep their three-game series with the American league champions, the Pale Hose annexed their fourth and fifth straight.

Not since 1920, when the Sox won their first six games has the Chicago outfit made a better start. That year the Sox finished the season in second place with 9 wins and 58 defeats. Joe Haynes and Orval Grove each hurled eight hitters before 13,781 fans to keep the major leagues' only undefeated team a half-game ahead of the New York Yankees, who made it five of six by beating Washington, 5-2, on Hank Borowy's three hitter.

Pirate Fans Upset

Chicago's National League entry, the Cubs, also stayed in the limelight with a twin-victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates, 3-0 and 5-2, before 27,690 fans. A wild demonstration was staged by the Buc fans who pelted players, umpires and everyone in sight with seat cushions to show their disappointment over the double defeat.

The St. Louis-Cincinnati double-header which the Cards and Reds split was highlighted by the ejection of Bucky Walters. The Redlegs' ace right-hander was banished by Umpire Lou Jordis for arguing too vehemently over a decision calling him out at third after he attempted to stretch a two-base hit in the third inning of the opener.

The Cards went on to win, 2-0, behind the hurling of Ted Wilks but the Reds copped the nightcap 9-7 in 10 innings.

A's Win Again

Dizzy Trout won his second game of the young season, pitching Detroit to a 6-3 triumph over Cleveland before 23,063, while the Philadelphia Athletics handed the Boston Red Sox their sixth straight loss, 6-1.

The Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the New York Giants 3-1, before 27,782 fans, behind the hurling of Curt Davis, who notched his second triumph. The Boston Braves and Phillies split before 13,729 fans, the Braves winning the opener 3-2 and the Blue Jays coming from behind with three tallies in the ninth to take the nightcap 7-6.

Toronto Leafs Win Stanley Cup

Detroit, April 23 (AP)—A tired but happy Toronto Maple Leaf hockey club, which finished third in the regular National Hockey league race only to wade through to its third Stanley cup playoff championship in 14 years by beating the Detroit Red Wings, headed back for Toronto today with the coveted trophy, and a healthy pot of cash.

The Leafs, badly beaten physically but hanging to a dogged determination to capture the big prize, did it the hard way last night by grabbing the seventh and deciding game of the playoff finals, 2 to 1 before 14,890 fans—largest crowd ever to witness a hockey game in Detroit's Olympia.

Six of the Toronto players had been under medical care for the last week—Ted Kennedy with a shoulder injury, Reg Hamilton with a strained muscle, Gus Bodnar with a bad knee, Dave Schrinier with a charley horse, Mel Hill with a leg injury and Nick Metz, with a bad leg that kept him out of four games of the finals.

Sgt. Staley In Cage Tourney In China

Kunming, China, (By Mail)—Sgt. Ray O. Staley, son of Mrs. Anna E. Staley, 69 Stevens street, Gettysburg, was a member of "SOS All-Stars" basketball squad which recently competed in an all-China tournament here.

The tournament was composed of teams from all branches of the service and trophies and individual awards were presented to the champions and runners-up. Banners were presented to all the competing teams and in addition an award was presented to the "Outstanding Player," and the "Best Sportsman," of the tourney.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON

New York, April 23 (AP)—In San Francisco recently a boxer told the district attorney that he "would guarantee there would be no more fixed fights on this side of the bay" if a grand jury investigation of boxing was dropped.

That probably was the most startling development in a series of events which Nat Fleischer says has made boxing "no longer the safe sport it was before the war." . . . Fleischer, who keeps tabs on such things, reports there have been approximately 30 "no decision" bouts since Jan. 1. Ordinarily there would be that many in four years. . . . When officials refuse to give any decision in a fight, you can feel sure they're convinced it isn't entirely on the up. . . . Nat's theory is that gamblers, deprived of their usual outlet by the racing ban and chased out of New York by Mayor LaGuardia's "anti-tin-horn" campaign, have moved in on boxing on a big scale. . . . It adds up to a condition that requires vigorous attention from boxing commissioners everywhere.

Bill Sanders, the 16-year-old Texas schoolboy who kept a couple of Phillies scouts up until after midnight last February so they could sign him the minute it became legal to touch American Legion talent, insisted on working up with southpaws in training camp. . . . Manager Fred Fitzsimmons watched the procedure and finally asked the reason. "I haven't seen much of left-handed pitching," Bill explained. "I warm up with left-handers so I can study how the ball comes in, the angle of it and what it does when it's coming toward me."

FATALLY CRUSHED

Barnesboro, Pa., April 23 (AP)—Caught between a cutting machine and a rib inside the Barnes and Tucker mine, John Stislav, 35, of Bakerton, was crushed to death yesterday, the coroner reported.

BASEBALL MAY CHOOSE LEADER

Cleveland, April 23 (AP)—Baseball's question of the year—who will succeed the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis as czar of the game—may be answered tomorrow when moguls of the major leagues convene in Cleveland.

The straight-backed chair in the commissioner's office from whence Landis directed baseball for 23 years has been vacant since Nov. 25, when the former federal judge died. It will take 12 of the 16 votes of the big league club owners to elect a successor.

The meeting was called two weeks ago by Leslie M. O'Connor, chairman of baseball's advisory committee, after a four-man nominating group announced it was ready to make a "recommendation" concerning the position.

The baseball chiefs were summoned, O'Connor said, "for the purpose of receiving, considering and acting on the report of the joint committee in respect to the vacancy in the office of commissioner and taking any action deemed proper or desirable."

Although O'Connor inferred the owners might not make a commissioner at the meeting, American League President William Harridge previously declared baseball wants a new chief as soon as possible.

Keep a close watch now for real coccidiosis. I give my chicks Dr. Salubry's KEN-O-SAL for its tonic benefits now and will just increase it to eight tablets per gallon of drinking water if real coccidiosis appears. I bought enough for prompt action when necessary. Stop at your Dr. Salubry dealer for your supply.
